- The TRS takes into account various factors, but primarily the total size of a Top Trader's positions relative to the account balance and the way this relationship has evolved historically.

- Social Trading meets your individual risk preferences. You decide what risk you are comfortable with and are notified as soon as one of your Top Traders no longer matches it.

Tips for Followers

- ✓ Follow several Top Traders
At ayondo, you can build a portfolio of up to 5 Top Traders. This gives you the opportunity to combine several signal providers and to participate in different trading strategies and markets.
- ✓ Note the Trading Career
With ayondo, all Top Traders are expected to climb the Trading Career. They have to prove their trading skill with a positive performance and good risk management in order to reach the top. Traders in the upper stages of the career have already proven their skills over a longer time period and are thus more attractive to Followers.
- ✓ Note the Score
The Risk Score reveals more about the risk behaviour of Top Traders. Changes in the risk scores provide information about any changes the trader is making to their trading strategy or risk behaviour.
- ✓ Keep a close eye on your account
Trading is demanding. As Followers, you should always keep an eye on your Top Traders and make any adjustments as needed.
- ✓ Note trader types
With ayondo, Top Traders can trade with both virtual money and real money. With a minimum deposit of £2,000 Real Money Traders are highlighted in the rankings with a special "R" badge.
- ✓ Take a look at the remuneration model of the Top Traders
The performancebased model is more suitable for traders that follow a long-term trading strategy, whereas the volumesbased is suitable for short-term strategies.

The Trader Risk Score provides an insight into your personal risk behavior.

- In addition to the career levels, each Top Trader is also rated by the Risk Score which takes into account various factors, but primarily the total size of a Top Trader's positions relative to the account balance and the way this relationship has evolved historically.
- Variations in risk behaviour and trading strategies can be identified through changes in the Risk Scores

Only as a Real Money Trader you are able to choose between the performancebased and volumebased remuneration model

- Traders in the upper stages of the career are more attractive to Followers and have the chance of a higher remuneration through a higher number of Followers
- There is a higher percentage share for Real Money Traders with the volume-based model
